

How does war make you feel?

Talk to your friends, teachers and parents about the war. Then write Skeeter and Skooter and tell them how you feel. Or draw an editorial cartoon.

Don't forget to write your name, age, address, grade and school name on your letter. We'll print some of your feelings in future issues of Chalk it up!

A weekly mini-page just for kids

A war creates many unusual feelings for everyone. Some people become proud and patriotic. Others get angry. And still others feel sad.

Skeeter and Skooter and their woodland friends have been discussing the Gulf War everyday in school. Each one of them feels differently about the war and what's happening in the Middle East.

Talking about it, says their teacher, is one of the best ways to sort out these new feelings.

"I'm glad we're helping Kuwait. They need our help."

"It's their war... Why do WE have to get involved?"

"I think the war makes gas prices too high."

"I feel sad that people have to die."

"I hope the environment doesn't get ruined for the people who live there."

"I think the airplanes are cool."
